Herb Greenberg, you've been in the game for a long time- longer than I have. How's it feel to be called a crooked reporter on CNBC?
- H Herb 00:06
It feels like the person who called me a cricketer reporter on CNBC, Patrick Byrne, for the third time has labeled me has defamed me has slandered me is getting in the way of me doing my job. He's getting watching taking money from the shorts. I mean, ain't that the game? Isn't that the game he just portrayed us? Yeah, exactly. That's exactly what he said. He has absolutely no proof what he claims he has here what Patrick Byrne claims he has his affidavits that were filed in connection with a lawsuit as I have written in my column on Market Watch. These affidavits which were couldn't which were given under the the illegally they would be committing perjury if there were a lie, ROI, what they wrote. And so Patrick is going around handing out he's handing these things out to people before they're even filed with the wall. I gotta tell you something.
- J Jim 00:52
Yeah.

H Herb 00:53
It is a sham. It is the ultimate.

J Jim 00:57
Well, you know, I got the I got the subpoena from the government list. We did use my copy. Yeah, I got it. You know why I got the subpoena. I got the subpoena. Because I've said negative things about a stock that I think is going lower. That's why I got that subpoena. I didn't get the subpoena because I'm corrupt and crooked like you.

H Herb 01:13
Let me tell you something, buddy-

J Jim 01:14
That's why we got a subpoena from the United States government, because you and I both tried to get people out of a stock that we said was going lower that then went lower.

H Herb 01:21
What's really going on is there's a conspiracy. There's another conspiracy. There is a real conspiracy if there's a conspiracy is a conspiracy by these people to try to silence the critics.
